CORRECTION.

In an article in last week's issue, in speaking of the charge made by Gen. Geiger of the duplicity of Cox, of the Columbus District, in trying to shield himself from the indignation of his Douglas friends, for his vote for the "English Swindle," by alleging that he gave the vote at the solicitation of Douglas himself, the types make us couple the name of Martin with Cox, as supporting the bill. The error was overlooked in reading the proof, which we very much regret. The name intended was Miller, instead of Martin. Mr. Martin was not in Congress at the time, and of course could not have voted for that the insertion of the name of Mr. Martin was a misprint. But as some unscrupulous partisan might attempt to take advantage of the error, and use it to make the ignorant believe that we in tended to do Mr. Martin an injustice, we take the precaution to make this correc-

We believe, too, that in one particular we did not represent Mr. Miller ac cording to the record. We were under the impression that he was originally with Mr. Cox, against the bill, but further investigation shows that he was for it all the time! We hope the Printer will not misread our scrawl and make it say "Martin" again, when "Miller" is entitled to the honor. It may not be amiss to say that Mr. Miller made a good thing out of his vote.
